2006 World Cup Power Rankings

Brazil – Still top of the class until they are dethroned. Victory over Japan was statement to the world.

Argentina –The Albiceleste attack was best of group play, making short work of draw C's 'Group of Death.'

Spain – Cruised through Group H with an offensive explosion. Could '06 be the year?

Germany – Host's up-tempo style of play may worry some, but it has been extremely effective thus far.

Italy – The alleged Serie A scandal proved not be an issue. The Azzurri are a serious threat behind stellar defense.

Netherlands – The Dutch survived Group C. Portugal is waiting in what looks like the best round of 16 match-up.

England – Struggled to score in first couple of matches. With Rooney back, the English should regain top form.

Portugal – Never challenged in weak group D. The Portuguese's loaded attack will challenge stingy Dutch defense.

2006 World Cup Leading Scorers

Miroslav Klose | Germany – A double in two of three group matches for the hosts' surging attack.

Fernando Torres | Spain – Top young gun of a deadly trio that will carry its nation deep into the elimination round.

Hernan Crespo | Argentina – Two impressive strikes despite resting in the group finale. His play dictates the offense.

Ronaldo | Brazil – Tied for the all-time World Cup scoring record with 14 scores, critics should cease with Brazil rolling.

Andriy Shevchenko | Ukraine – Carrying the load offensively, his team will go so as he does.
